Colin is a trusted advisor and counsel to workplaces of all sizes. Colin enjoys fostering long-term relationships with clients based on a foundation of earned trust. He takes pride in providing responsive, methodical and common-sense legal advice.

Colin also assists clients with commercial litigation matters, including shareholder disputes.

Colin has appeared as counsel at all levels of court in British Columbia, the Alberta Court of King's Bench, the Federal Court, collective agreement grievance arbitrations and various administrative tribunals, including the British Columbia Human Rights Tribunal, Alberta Human Rights Tribunal, Canadian Human Rights Commission, British Columbia Employment Standards Tribunal, British Columbia Labour Relations Board, WorkSafeBC, British Columbia Workers' Compensation Appeals Tribunal, Appeals Commission for Alberta Workers' Compensation, and British Columbia Liquor and Cannabis Regulation Branch.

Colin was born and raised in Kelowna. He spent the first part of his career practicing at Harris & Company LLP and the Vancouver office of a large international law firm in Vancouver before moving home to Kelowna in 2016. Colin rejoined Harris & Company LLP in 2024 having practiced at the largest law firm in British Columbia's interior.
