Liz practices in workplace law, commercial litigation and intellectual property. She is admitted to practice law in British Columbia, Queensland and England and Wales, and has acted on complex disputes for corporate and individual clients. Liz has appeared as counsel at all levels of court in British Columbia.

Liz began her career with an international law firm in Brisbane and London. Prior to joining Harris in 2026, she practiced at the largest law firm in British Columbia's interior, where she gained further experience in commercial, employment and intellectual property law matters.

Liz takes a practical, solution-focused approach to legal work. She values clear communication and collaboration; she works closely with clients to understand their goals and achieve outcomes effectively.
